A TRACIC LYNCHING

The Negro was Taken from the Fire After a Few Minutes---Wood was too Wet to Burn.

The Murder of the Cotton Family Terribly Avenged--- Negroes Confessed to the Crime Before Being Hung.

FIGHTING UNDER THE GALLOWS.

AMITE CITY, LA., Jan. 20. - The mol which set out last night on a lynching expedition completed its work at an early hour this morning, leaving three negroes dangling at a rope's end. After hanging Gus Williams to a tree near Little Zion church, they changed their minds about burning Arch Joiner and John Johnson at the stake, and hanged them to a stont oak tree near the residence in which the Cotton family was murdered, and to which the negroes confessed. The wood was too wet for burning at the stake. Then the mob considered its work done after riddling the bodies with bullets.

THE MARCH PROM TOWN. The three negroes were led out inte the court green, where the borsemen surrounded them and waited a little while until the Captain of the squad announced his readiness to depart. Before going, the Captain thanked the people and said that they were there for business only, and if any wanted to join in and take a hand in the execution guilty of the murder of five members would be pleased. In fact the girl through The Herald and otherwise how many are boys and how many are they were welcome. One of the men climbed up the oak and fastened the Amite City, and that the mob was on rope, while another slipped the noose over the unfortunate's head. While this was going on, Johnson said to the men about him that if they hung Arch ATTORNEY AT LAW, Joiner, whom he had implicated in previous statements, they would be killing an innocent man, as the men who belped him were not in the country. For his pains he was given a rap rope, which quieted him for the time. Williams was told to pray, and he did
